MANAFORT LOSES BID TO STAY IN 'VIP' JAIL

President Donald Trump's former campaign manager Paul Manafort may face evidence at trial about alleged wrongdoing in the 1980s and lost a bid to stay at a jail where he said he was being treated like a "VIP," court papers on Wednesday showed. The developments came as Manafort gets closer to two trials where he will defend himself against a number of charges ranging from bank fraud to failing to register as a foreign agent for lobbying work for pro-Russia politicians in Ukraine. Manafort's prosecution arose out of U.S. Special Counsel Robert Mueller's investigation into possible collusion between Russia and Trump's 2016 presidential campaign. One trial is set for July 25 in Alexandria, Virginia, and the second case in Washington, D.C., has a Sept. 17 trial date. Judge T.S. Ellis, who is overseeing the Alexandria case, ordered a hearing for Tuesday to weigh motions by Manafort to move the first trial to a more Trump-friendly area of Virginia and to postpone it until after the Washington trial was done.

COMCAST RAISES BID FOR SKY TO $34 BILLION

Comcast Corp. on Wednesday raised its all-cash offer for Britain's Sky to $34 billion, topping a raised bid of $32.5 billion for the pay-TV group from Rupert Murdoch's Twenty-First Century Fox. Fox, which has been trying to buy the pan-European group since December 2016, offered to pay 14 pounds per share, a 12 percent premium to Comcast's earlier offer. Comcast on Wednesday increased its cash offer to 14.75 pounds per share. Sky shares closed at 15.15 pounds. Comcast said its cash offer has been recommended by Sky's independent committee of directors. The U.S. cable group gatecrashed Murdoch's attempt to buy the 61 percent of Sky his group did not already own in February, when Fox was still firmly stuck in the regulatory process. The fight for Britain's leading pay-TV group is part of a bigger battle being waged in the entertainment industry as the world's media giants splash out tens of billions of dollars on deals to be able to compete with Netflix and Amazon.com. Comcast and Walt Disney are locked in a separate $70 billion-plus battle to buy most of Fox's assets, which would include Sky.

ARMLESS FLA MAN STABS MAN WITH SCISSORS

A 46-year-old homeless man with no arms was arrested in Miami Beach, Florida, for stabbing another man with a pair of scissors using his feet, police said on Wednesday. Florida native Jonathan Crenshaw stabbed a 22-year-old Chicago man twice with the scissors before running away, according to the Miami Beach Police Department report on Crenshaw's arrest early on Tuesday. Crenshaw, a local fixture known for painting colorful works of art with his feet, according to local media reports, was subsequently detained near the attack in a shopping and tourist area near South Beach and charged with one count of aggravated battery, a second-degree felony, police said. Crenshaw, who told police he acted in self-defense, was being held at Turner Guilford Knight Correctional Center in Miami. His court-appointed attorney, Devon Frampton, could not immediately be reached for comment. The victim, Cesar Coronado, was admitted to a local hospital bleeding from his left arm, police said.

NEVADA EXECUTION BLOCKED BY DRUGMAKER

A condemned killer who had given up on any further appeals as he awaited execution in Nevada on Wednesday received an 11th-hour reprieve thanks to a pharmaceutical company suing to block the use of one of its drugs in the lethal injection process. Alvogen Inc, which said the Nevada Corrections Department had obtained the sedative midazolam unlawfully, won a court order barring the product from being administered to Scott Dozier as part of the state's newly devised and untested three-drug execution protocol. The 47-year-old inmate had been scheduled to be put to death at 8 p.m. at a state prison in Ely, Nevada, about 245 miles north of Las Vegas, in what would be the state's first execution in 12 years. But the ruling by Clark County District Judge Elizabeth Gonzalez left uncertain when or whether the execution could proceed. The privately held drugmaker filed a lawsuit on Tuesday, asserting that use of its product for an execution would cause "irreparable injury to Alvogen, its reputation, and its goodwill."

Croatia and France will square off in the World Cup Final on Sunday.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The greatest sporting event in the world is ready to take center-stage on Sunday after Croatia defeated England 2-1 in extra time on Wednesday afternoon.

Mario Mandzukic provided the winner to send Croatia to its first-ever World Cup Final.

Waiting for the debuts is France, the European powerhouse making its third appearances in the Final since 1998.

Les Bleus, one of the early-tournament favorites, moved past the dangerous Belgium 1-0 in the semis.

On the grass at Industry City

Watch the World Cup finals at Sunset Park's playground Industry City, which is reserving two of its outdoor courtyards for watch parties. Grab a frozen drink from the Frying Pan's new outpost on dry land and grub from the Burger Joint, Avocaderia and more, and get ready to get loud. Free, Courtyard 1-2 and Courtyard 5-6, 274 36th St., Brooklyn

Lace up for the action at Brooklyn Bowl

Williamsburg's bowling alley/music venue Brooklyn Bowl will open at 10 a.m. for a special all-ages screening of the World Cup finals, screening on all 14 screens throughout the venue with full sound on its concert audio system. Special happy hour deals will be in effect during the game, including $5 beers, $6 frozen margaritas and $6 wine.

If you're up for a match-up of your own, mention "Bowling Special" at the door to receive half off your lane from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Free, 61 Wythe Ave., Brooklyn

Seven months after Andy Byford took over NYC Transit, he got his first meeting with Mayor Bill de Blasio. GETTY IMAGES

Mayor and NYC Transit chief meet — finally

On Tuesday, Andy Byford got his first face-to-face with Mayor Bill de Blasio, seven months after taking over NYC Transit.

way, can work together on expanding bus service, implementing a mitigation plan for the L train shutdown coming in April 2019 and making accessibility improvements.

Byford and de Blasio also agreed to have quarterly meetings and create a joint task force to improve collaboration efforts. The mayor also reiterated his demand “for New York City investment to go toward New York City transit, and for a long-term revenue source paid for by a tax on New York City’s wealthiest residents,” the statement said.

De Blasio announced his proposal for a “millionaire’s tax” last summer, after Cuomo declared the MTA subway was in a state of emergency, and said such a tax could generate up to $800 million annually that would be used exclusively for transit.

In May, Byford unveiled NYC Transit’s 10-year Fast Forward plan to modernize the MTA system, which is more than a century old. The initiative includes updating the subway signal system, improving accessibility, an open-far payment system, adding more than 650 subway cars within the next five years and more.

Seven months after Andy Byford took over NYC Transit, he got his first face-to-face with Mayor Bill de Blasio on Tuesday — just days after telling The New Yorker it was a “bit weird” the two hadn’t yet met.

“I pushed him very hard on the need for funding over the next 10 years and the need for there to be substantial contributions from the city,” Byford said after the 90-minute meeting at City Hall, The New York Times reported.

The mayor’s office has long held the stance that the city’s aging and in-crisis MTA system is in the hands of Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who controls the agency.

In a statement after the meeting, de Blasio said the meeting mainly centered on how the city and NYC Transit, which oversees subways, buses, paratransit services and the Staten Island Rail-

5 FAST FACTS ABOUT ANDY BYFORD

Before taking the helm of NYC Transit in January, Byford, 52, was CEO of the Toronto Transit Commission (TTC), which serves 1.8 million straphangers daily and is North America’s third-largest public transit system, for five years. Here are a few more facts about Byford:

- He oversaw a modernization plan that improved operations, reduced delays and achieved record TTC customer satisfaction levels.
- Under his leadership, the TTC updated its signal system and extended a subway line.

- Due to those successes, the American Public Transportation Association named TTC Outstanding Transit System of the Year for 2017.

- He was chief operating officer of Australia’s largest transit system in Sydney.

- He spent 14 years with London Underground, overseeing three of its busiest subway lines — and increases in straphanger satisfaction and operational performance.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

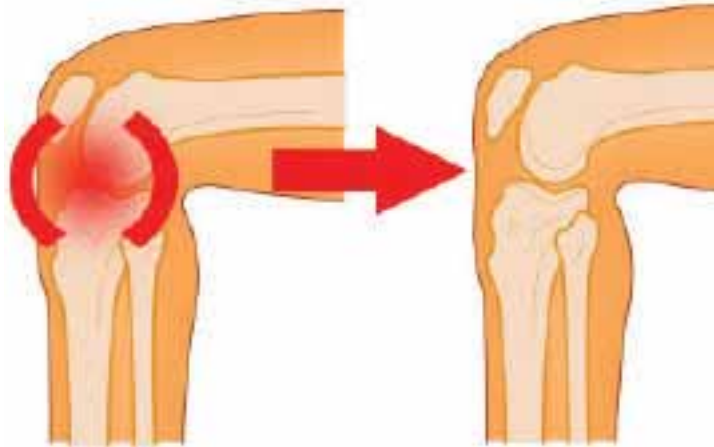

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

THE FOREMAN FORECAST: BLIND JUSTICE

TOM FOREMAN

CNN's Tom Foreman is the author of the book "My Year of Running Dangerously."

Let's face it. Nobody wants a moderate, reasonable, new justice for the Supreme Court of the United States. Well, let me qualify my statement — I suspect plenty of normal voters across the country would very much like a person to listen to cases quietly, consider the law in the broad context of history and modernity, and make rulings which reflect not political bias but — you know — judgment. But nobody with any muscle in DC wants that.

The partisans want partisans, plain and simple.

The right wing wants someone who will tip decisions decidedly in their favor for the next decade or more, and they think they may have it in Brett Kavanaugh. He was once an aide to President George W. Bush, a key player in the impeachment of President Bill Clinton, and he's made the obligatory pledge to "interpret the law, not make the law." He stopped short of saying he'll get the coffee and doughnuts for the Republican accept a true moderate as a consolation prize. But Kavanaugh fills the political role of Conservative Boogeyman. He'll help them to raise boatloads of money from similarly frightened donors, to justify their own partisan choices when they snag the White House again, and to promote the idea that there is no political middle ground — which, as I have noted before, is a point both the left and right just love to make.

But what of the voters who want some moderation? Who will speak for them in the confirmation process? The sad truth is, probably no one. As one commentator noted on CNN this week the Supreme Court has been "weaponized" like everything else that touches our politics these days.

So unless we start hearing a lot more voices of nonpartisan reason, I think the senators should not bother turning on the lights during the confirmation hearings. After all, those who are blindly partisan won't need them anyway.

caucus, but you can't have everything.

He's also far enough to the right to thrill many Democrats. Oh, it's true that the idea of the court being stacked so heavily against a progressive agenda terrifies them, and maybe they'd

Trump calls Germany 'captive' of Russia; demands higher defense spending

President Donald Trump accused Germany on Wednesday of being a "captive" of Russia due to its energy reliance, before a NATO summit where he pressed allies to more than double defense spending.

Having lambasted NATO members for failing to reach a target of spending 2 percent of national income on defense, Trump told fellow leaders in Brussels he would prefer a goal of 4 percent, similar to U.S. levels, officials said.

That would represent a massive upheaval of budgetary priorities in Europe where Germany and many others have pledged only to reach 2 percent by 2024 or later, and it was not clear what allies would spend the money on.

At the end of the first session of a two-day summit, NATO Secretary-General Jens Stoltenberg said the aim first was to reach 2 percent, but moments later Trump tweeted that allies were undercutting the United States on trade and needed to immediately up spending.

The exchange was part of an uncomfortable day as anxious Western allies were subjected to the U.S. president's "America first" approach. His comment that Germany was controlled by Russia earned a rebuke from Berlin.

"We are not prisoners, neither of Russia nor of the United States," Germany's Foreign Minister Heiko Maas told reporters.

But Trump was also at times enthusiastic and affable, exchanging embraces and handshakes with fellow leaders, posing for photographs in front of a NATO military band and mingling at a summit dinner in a Brussels museum.

Unlike a fraught Group of Seven summit in Canada in June, Trump did not block a final leaders' statement, which paved the way for Macedonia to start NATO membership talks and a modernization of the alliance to better deter

"We're supposed to be guarding against Russia, and Germany goes out and pays billions and billions of dollars a year to Russia."

Donald Trump

Moscow.

Earlier, Trump strode into NATO's new glass-and-steel headquarters and into the amphitheatre-like North Atlantic Council decision-making chamber to shake hands with leaders — but only after publicly railing against Germany, one of NATO's top European powers, at a breakfast meeting with Stoltenberg.

Trump told Stoltenberg Germany was wrong to support an $11-billion Baltic Sea pipeline to import even more Russian gas while being slow to meet targets for NATO spending.

"We're supposed to be guarding against Russia, and Germany goes out and pays billions and billions of dollars a year to Russia," Trump said in the presence of reporters. "We're protecting Germany, we're protecting France, we're protecting all of these countries. Then numerous of the countries go out and make a pipeline deal with Russia where they're paying billions of dollars into the coffers of Russia," he said. "I think that's very inappropriate."

Trump appeared to substantially overstate German reliance on Russian energy and to imply Berlin was funding a pipeline that Chancellor Angela Merkel says is a commercial venture. She hit back by contrasting her own experience of growing up in Soviet-controlled East Germany with the sovereign, united Germany now playing a major role in NATO.

Trump and Merkel later held businesslike talks on the sidelines. Trump said he had a "very, very good relationship" with Merkel who described the two as "good partners."

A source close to French President Emmanuel Macron said Trump had voiced his "personal attachment" to Europe and gave "rather positive and constructive messages" to his allies.

"There is no breakup between America and Europe," the source said after Macron and Trump held "friendly" talks. But with tensions in the alliance smoldering over Trump's trade tariffs on European steel, his earlier comments fueled concerns about the U.S. role in keeping the peace that has reigned since World War II. REUTERS

Carter's lawyers file appeal, claim free speech rights violated

Michelle Carter was sentenced to 2½ years in prison in 2017 for persuading her boyfriend to kill himself via text.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

In 2017 Michelle Carter was convicted in Massachusetts of involuntary manslaughter for the 2014 suicide death of Conrad Roy III. The prosecution argued that her text messages lay at the crux of the 18-year-old's death, having pushed him over the edge.

But now, her attorneys say that her conviction infringes on her right to free speech.

In an appeal filed in the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court on June 29, Carter's attorneys argue that her text messages to Roy should not have been used as evidence to convict her of involuntary manslaughter.

"Because the judge convicted Carter for what she said, or failed to say, not what she did, this case implicates free speech under the 1st Amendment," the brief reads.

Carter's attorneys say that the text messages presented at her 2017 trial were "cherry picked" by the state in order to engage in "a systematic campaign of coercion" against Roy, targeting the young man's insecurities.

Carter waived her right to a jury trial, meaning a judge decided the case. At the crux of that trial was a series of text messages Carter sent to Roy, often inquiring when he would kill himself and even giving suggestions and advice on when and how to do it.

"You have to look at it that way, and people only fail because they have the same mind-set as you."

Michelle Carter

When Roy told Carter that he was "discouraged" about possibly failing in his suicide attempt, she encouraged him not to think like that — not about suicide, but about thinking he would fail.

"There is more success than there are failures," she said. "You have to look at it that way, and people only fail because they have the same mind-set as you. Thinking they'll fail."

But the case seemed to hinge on one conversation in particular, though this one was over the phone. On the night Roy committed suicide inside his truck, which was parked at a Kmart plaza parking lot, he called Carter to once again express his doubts about going through with it, and even stepped out of the truck.

In the appeal Carter's attorneys filed, they say there is "no reliable record, however, of what Carter or Roy said during their last two calls on the evening of June 12, 2014."

In a text message to a friend the same night of Roy's suicide, Carter seemed to consider herself responsible.

"His death was my fault," she wrote. "Like, honestly I could have stopped it. I was the one on the phone with him and he got out of the car because he was working and he got scared and I [expletive] told him to get back in. ... If they read my messages I'm done. His family will hate me and I could go to jail."

The verdict rests on this text, Carter's attorneys say, and yet they argue it is "not a contemporaneous account, but an uncorroborated 'confession,' contradicted by physical evidence, that Carter made to another teen months later."

Carter is the first person convicted in the U.S. of involuntary manslaughter because of her words alone.

"No state has interpreted its common law, or enacted an assisted-suicide statute, to criminalize such speech," her lawyers write, "and no defendant has ever been convicted for encouraging suicide where the defendant neither physically participated nor provided the means."

WHAT TO KNOW IF YOU GO TO OPEN GARDEN DAY NYC

Open Garden Day NYC, which runs from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on July 14, also commemorates the 40th anniversary of GreenThumb, an NYC Parks program that was created in 1978 and is the nation's largest community gardening program.

GreenThumb offers materials, programming, technical support and monthly workshops to the city's community gardens. The organization has 20,000 volunteer community gardeners, and they produce more than 500,000 pounds of food annually.

Not only will dozens of community gardens open on Saturday as part of Open Garden Day NYC, each will offer free activities that run the gamut from workshops, tours and composting to arts and crafts, music and beekeeping classes to cooking demonstrations and more.

To find a community garden nearby and see what will be available at each of the more than 40 gardens that are participating in Open Garden Day NYC on Saturday, visit nycgovparks.org/green-thumb/open-gardens.

WE ARE ON THE CASE!

Yesterday we decided to change things up a little bit with the Grumble. We asked you to send in some issues that are directly affecting you in your neighborhood and we would in turn try to get to the bottom of these issues and get back to you with our results. And boy... did we receive a LOT of emails from you. Thank you so much! Like most things, solving neighborhood issues takes time and we could not fix each of these problems. But never fear, we are working on them right now and will make announcements as soon as we can.

The second item on today's docket, it's time to announce our Grumble winner for the week! This week's winner is Melanie from Philly who wrote to us about people who stop randomly in crowds. You will be receiving a $25 Amazon gift card on us!

'Hotel Transylvania 3' allowed Keegan-Michael Key to uncensor himself

The comedy star talks about returning to the franchise.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

Despite possessing some of most acclaimed comedic chops in modern pop culture, stepping into the role of Murray the Mummy in "Hotel Transylvania 2" was a bit of a struggle for Keegan-Michael Key. Of course, the star of "Mad TV" and "Key & Peele" was always going to be able to bring the funny. But he had to make sure that he mirrored the work of his predecessor, Ceelo Green, as well as honoring director Genndy Tartakovsky's vision. We caught up with Key to chat about reprising the role for "Hotel Transylvania 3:

Keegan-Michael Key voices Murray the Mummy.
SONY PICTURES

Summer Vacation."

This is your seventh animated voice role. What is the appeal?

The big appeal of doing them is that you are allowed to be more broad. Part of it is you don't censor yourself because, really, there is no one watching you. Usually there are only six or seven people in the room, there are no cameras and you can really go for it. The reason you are encouraged to really go for it, and to go more broad, so to speak, is because the cartoon is always going to look beyond human, bigger than human, bigger than life. The characteristics of the character on the page that has been drawn is going to seem more broad, and so you want to match the animation.

The "Hotel Transylvania" franchise stands out because it does feel like the older animated films, like the Road Runner and Chuck Jones stuff.

I actually absolutely agree that they have this Chuck Jones, Walter Lantz, Tex

Avery quality about them. There is a certain amount of schmaltz to the characters, and I mean that in a positive way. In certain parts of the film they are even doing vaudeville bits. And with Adam Sandler doing the voice of Drac, it moves into that direction. I love the silent classics, I am a big fan of Harold Lloyd, Buster Keaton, Charlie Chaplin. Those people really appeal to me.

What were you looking to achieve with this film?

I think there were two things that we were always looking to achieve. For me, I am a big fan of clarity. I constantly ask, "Am I, Keegan the actor, having a little too much fun and showing off for the sake of myself? Or am I doing something that adds to the story they are trying to tell, the thematic story of the film they are trying to tell?" I am trying to make sure that any accents or enhancements I provide are only helping the audience engage into the story more.

You make it sound very creatively fulfilling.

It is actually very creatively fulfilling. There are usually about six people there: There's the engineer, doing the recording; a couple of producers; Genndy, who in this case is the writer and director; and then sometimes another writer will wander in. Which is something I welcome because if I have a line or an idea, everyone is always open to it and they will let me try it. So if someone laughs in the room, you might have just struck gold.

"Hotel Transylvania 3" opens in theaters Friday.

'Skyscraper' shows us a very different Dwayne Johnson

Writer and director Rawson Marshall Thurber has been waiting 35 years to make the film.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

It has been Rawson Marshall Thurber's ambition to make "Skyscraper" for a very, very long time — 35 years in fact, the 43-year-old writer and director told Metro. "I have wanted to do an action film since I was 8 years old," he says.

"Skyscraper" is peppered with numerous nods to the genre, too, as its plot is basically "The Towering Inferno" meets "Die Hard." While that might cynically be called a detriment by some, Thurber isn't trying to pull the rug over anyone's eyes, as he is more than happy to admit just how influential past action movies were on the development and production of "Skyscraper."

"It is a love letter to the action movies I grew up on, the 'Die Hards' and 'Towering Inferno' and 'The Fugitive' and 'Cliffhanger,'" Thurber says.

This time, though, instead of Bruce Willis, Harrison Ford or Sylvester Stallone, it is the turn of the biggest movie star in the world right now, Dwayne Johnson, to dive head first into the disaster/action genre.

In "Skyscraper" Johnson plays Will Sawyer, a former FBI agent and amputee that has just been hired as the security guard in the world's tallest and safest skyscraper. Obviously, immediately after getting this job and moving his family into the building, it is set on fire.

At the time of the incident, though, Johnson is not in the skyscraper, so we see him trying to re-enter it to save his wife and two young children, while at the same time trying to figure out how and why it is set on fire.

Thurber, who collaborated with Johnson on "Central Intelligence," said he was overjoyed to reunite with the cinematic stalwart.

"Dwayne Johnson is the biggest action star in the world for a reason, and certainly audiences have come to expect certain things from his films and from his performances," says Thurber.

But rather than just

asking him to do the same role as he has done before, Thurber wanted Johnson's Will Sawyer to be a much different character.

"I guess the thing I am most proud of from the film and from his performance, is that audiences that have already seen the film have said this is a performance that people are saying they have never seen him give before," Thurber says. "He is not a superhero, he is much more vulnerable than he is in other films."

"Dwayne and I talked about that every day, making his character barely survive, and barely surviving the adventure," he adds. "He is battered and bruised and bloodied. I think people connect with that more than they do the impervious cool, the vulnerable struggle."

"Skyscraper" opens in theaters Friday.

Brooklyn Bridge Park's Movies with a View doesn't disappoint. ETIENNE FROSSARD

Movies with a View return tonight

Brooklyn Bridge Park's outdoor film series salutes female directors and adds food & drink vendors by Smorgasburg.

eva.kis@metro.us

Brooklyn Bridge Park is already one of the best venues to catch a free outdoor movie in the summer, and it's just contracted the city's best outdoor food market to provide concessions.

Smorgasburg will be providing for all your snacky needs for the 2018 season of Movies With a View, which begins screening movies on the park's Harbor View Lawn on Thursdays starting July 12. The lineup will change week to week, with vendors rotating in and out. For opening night, Burger Supreme will bring his simple but outstanding cheeseburgers, Musser's Famous Crab Cake Sandwiches speaks for itself, Belgian-cut fries from Home Frite, pizza from Wood Fired Edibles and this summer's hit: torched meringue-topped cones by Bona Bona Ice Cream.

The popular beer and wine options introduced last summer — Brooklyn Bridge is the only public park in the city where you can buy alcohol — will also return. Prepare to have your bag searched on entry to keep out unauthorized bottles.

As for the screenings, this year's Movies With a View is themed She Directs, showcasing the work of female-identifying directors throughout the eight-week series, from classics like Penelope Spheeris' "Wayne's World" to last summer's blockbuster "Wonder Woman" by Patty Jenkins. Movies With a View runs weekly on Thursdays through Aug. 30, with the final film decided by an online vote that opens May 25 and closes June 24.

Arrive early not just to snag one of the coveted spots on the lawn but for live sets spun by Brooklyn Radio DJs with a new start time of 6 p.m., then a short film decided by the feature presentation at sundown (around 8 p.m.).

HERE'S THE FULL SCHEDULE FOR BROOKLYN BRIDGE PARK'S MOVIES WITH A VIEW 2018:

Brooklyn's fastest race is back

The New York City E-Prix returns this weekend with a bigger and better race. Here's what to expect.

eva.kis@metro.us

A race track in the middle of New York City? Formula 1 chief Bernie Ecclestone didn't think it could be done, but Formula E turned a stretch of the Red Hook waterfront into the site of New York's first-ever E-Prix, the electric version of Formula 1.

"It exceeded expectations," says Mike Hopper, the adviser who helped bring the five-year-old race series to Brooklyn in 2017 and again in 2018, taking place the weekend of July 14-15.

"From the time that Formula E leadership looked at this event site and knew we were able to do a race here to what it actually became, we were blown away by it and we're super excited to be back in Red Hook again."

To go with the green and sustainable ethos of the race, Formula E races on existing roads within its host cities. It takes just over two weeks to set up the track, which is picked up and moved to the next city once the racing is over.

The 2018 Formula E season began in December in Hong Kong, and the championships will be decided after the checkered flag falls in Red Hook on July 15. Unlike in 2017, when tickets sold out well in advance, you can still get into this year's race — and new for 2018, kids 15 and under get in free.

What is Formula E and how is it different from Formula 1?

Formula E cars look much like their Formula 1 cousins, only they run entirely on batteries instead of gasoline. Since there's no fuel being burned, the race not only cleaner for fans and the environment, but the electric motors make for a much quieter race — though you'll still get the zooming as they shoot down the straightaways.

What's new for 2018?

The 2018 New York City E-Prix track is longer, up to 1.5 miles from last year's 1.2 miles, which will "give more of an opportunity for the cars to reach greater speeds, and there should be more competition for places," says Hopper.

Twenty drivers from 10 teams, including newcomers Porsche and Mercedes, will compete. Formula E cars are capable of going as fast as their Formula 1 cousins, but there's a simple reason why they top out around 155mph.

"These cars could do well over 200 miles an hour, but if you did that with these current vehicles, the batteries drain so quickly that they wouldn't be able to finish the race," explains Hopper.

Expect a faster race next year though, when the new generation of Formula E cars with more efficient batteries debut.

Improvements for the fans

Free to all ticketholders, the Allianz eVillage surrounding the track is also larger, with an expanded roster of 12 food trucks, with additional shaded areas and cold water fountains.

The eVillage is where you'll find driver meet-and-greets before each day's races, live entertainment and racing-themed activities like driving simulators, trying out new electric tech, getting behind the wheel of new hybrid cars, and a first look at the next generation of Formula E cars.

And at the end of the race, all fans are invited to watch the podium presentations and even get a little Champagne shower at the end of each race day.

The 2018 Formula E New York City E-Prix takes place July 14-15 at the Brooklyn Cruise Terminal, 72 Bowne St., Red Hook. Tickets are $85 per day or $150 for a weekend pass for adults and free for kids up to age 15; students are $55/$95. fiaformulae.com

Enjoy the taste of Northern Ireland on Belfast's culinary scene

With innovative restaurants and tasty tours, the country's capital city boasts some serious foodie appeal.

patrick.king@metro.us

Belfast has undergone a culinary renaissance over the years and is now home to some of Europe's most exciting restaurants and bars, proving to be a thriving scene that's a perfect destination for foodies of all kinds.

Experience the warmth of an Irish welcome as you delight in some of the city's most renowned restaurants who take advantage of the region's fresh, local ingredients and produce. Or enjoy a few drinks at some of Belfast's most trendy cocktail bars and microbreweries. Here are some of the culinary highlights you won't want to miss on your next trip to Northern Ireland's capital city of Belfast.

A taste of Belfast

Belfast has been a breeding ground for forward-thinking chefs and there's no better example than the city's two great Michelin-starred restaurants, Ox and EIPIC. Both elevate fresh, local ingredients to give diners an experience they won't soon forget.

On East Bridge Street, explore the world famous St. George's Market. Built between 1890 and 1896, this award-winning Victorian covered market is one of the most vibrant attractions in Northern Ireland. Sample all types of gourmet nibbles from fresh produce to hot food, plus delicious coffees and cakes, often accompanied by live music. From St. George's Market, sign up for one of Belfast's many guided food tours, where you can continue to taste treats from some of the most popular cafés and restaurants in town while also learning about the city's best artisan food producers.

When it comes to seafood, it's hard to beat Belfast's unique tide-to-table approach and restaurants like the Mourne Seafood Bar on Bank Street, which offers the best of the daily catch. You'll fill up on some of the best oysters, mussels and freshwater fish that you can eat straight from the sea.

Over on Demesne Road, the Rayanne House serves up its special "Titanic menu," a re-creation of the final meal served to the legendary ship's first-class passengers. Menu items include a pan-seared filet mignon topped with foie gras and truffles and drizzled with a cognac and spiced peaches with chartreuse jelly vanilla ice cream.

If you're feeling inspired after eating this creative meal, you can enroll in one of Northern Ireland's many culinary schools, such as Orchard Acre Farm or the Belfast Cookery School to test your magic in the kitchen. Perhaps you can learn how to create some of Belfast's favorite local dishes like the traditional breakfast — an Ulster Fry, made up of sausage, beans and eggs or a sumptuous sandwich on a famous Belfast bap.

The Belfast brew scene

Just as innovative and creative as the city's restaurants, the Belfast brew scene has ignited the imagination of Northern Ireland's best brewers, distillers and mixologists. Enjoy a craft beer from local microbreweries like Bootleggers on Church Lane or The Woodworkers on Bradbury Place. If it's crisp cider you're looking for, don't miss the award-winning Armagh Cider Company. To sample the regions many whiskey and gin distilleries, be sure not to miss the Belfast Food Tour's special "Gin Jaunts" and "Whiskey Walks" to really get you in the "spirit".

Modern flair meets traditional favorites

There's no better place to sip your favorite beverage than a traditional

Northern Ireland pub. While there are pubs to suit all tastes in Belfast, the old ones that have the most character. Between Ann Street and High Street, explore the tiny cobblestone area called the Belfast Entries for traditional favorites such as White's Tavern and The Morning Star Bar. Or check out the beautiful 19th-century Crown Liquor Saloon on Great Victoria Street. Most pubs also offer live music in the evenings so you can delight in your drink while tapping your toes to traditional Irish tunes.

For bars with a view, nothing can beat the newly opened Observatory at Grand Central Hotel Belfast. Towering in at 23 stories, the Observatory is the highest bar on the island of Ireland and offers incredible views of Belfast city and beyond.

Disney's long-awaited Hollywood Studios attraction opened to the general public last Saturday. Here's a first look inside Andy's yard.

his hat while clinging to his trademark lasso. While walking, you can see Andy's footsteps, who is not there because his mother called him inside.

From then on, the iconic characters of the film come alive so that everyone who visits Andy's yard feels like part of the team of beloved movie toys. For example, you can interact with the toy soldiers and be part of their platoon. The toys talk to the guests and "order" everyone to play and have fun.

Disney paid careful attention to detail, so the park is full of giant building blocks, tinkertoys, yo-yos, pieces of board games, dominoes and Scrabble tiles. And it's because the Toy Story Land imagineers sought to celebrate what defines childhood entertainment in general. It is a journey in time that invites nostalgia from those days when having fun was a priority.

“With the scenery, attractions and experiences, Toy Story Land represents the best of Walt Disney Imagineering’s collaboration with our

More fun is coming!

But the good news at Disney doesn't not end with the opening of Toy Story Land. Next year, Car fans will have their dose of adrenaline with the opening of Lightning McQueen's Racing Academy, which will be located near Rock 'n' Roller Coaster. Here you will find Lightning McQueen, who wants to share what he's learned these past years. During 2019, Mickey & Minnie's Runaway Railway will also open at Hollywood Studios. The attraction will immerse visitor in a world of cartoons and will feature a special song.

storyteller partners at Pixar Animation Studios," said Bob Chapek, President of Disney Parks, Experiences and Consumer Products. "This new land will place visitors within the wonderful world of Woody, Buzz and their friends, and invite everyone to experience the joy of being a toy."

The park includes two totally new attractions and fan favorite Toy Story Mania.

Wearing flip-flops this summer? You may want to think again

The flimsy footwear is a leading cause of heel pain, experts say.

SAM BRODSKY
Samantha.Brodsky@metro.us

When the weather's hot and you're rushing out the door, it's a no-brainer to choose flip-flops — they are, after all, the go-to summer shoe. But, your favorite thong slippers are one of the causes of heel pain, and they can do damage if you're not careful. We broke down exactly what you need to know moving forward.

Walking in flip-flops is one of the causes of heel pain

Although there are many causes of heel pain, including reactive arthritis, Achilles tendonitis and other injuries and conditions, wearing flip-flops for extended periods of time can also be one of the causes of heel pain and is damaging to your overall foot health.

Dr. Miguel Cunha, a Manhattan podiatrist who recently told us about infections caused by walking barefoot, explains that flip-flops "don't offer any arch or heel support, and you have to grip them with your toes to keep them on your feet."

Lack of support from flip-flops leads to longer pronation — the inward movement of the feet to absorb shock and distribute weight as we walk — which, in turn, can increase the progression of "underlying foot deformities such as bunions and hammer toes."

Dr. Cunha, also the founder of Gotham Footcare, went on to say that wearing flip-flops, one of the causes of heel pain, can also affect your posture.

But I like flip-flops. Can I still wear them even if they're one of the causes of heel pain?

Yes, but they are "only acceptable for short-term use if they have at least some arch support, a cushioned sole and supportive straps," Dr. Cunha says. "These type of flip-flops are appropriate to wear at the beach, around swimming pools, in communal bathing facilities and locker rooms at the gym, or around the house."

"Flip-flop use should be avoided for prolonged periods of walking and standing," he stresses, "and in no circumstances should they be worn for activities that involve running or hiking."

When in doubt, go for summer slide shoes to avoid heel pain

Dr. Cunha states that summer slide shoes should be your go-to for avoiding heel pain. Like flip-flops, they're convenient and easy to slip on and off, but unlike flip-flops, they're more supportive and won't be one of the causes of heel pain you may experience this summer.

Not all summer slide shoes can stop the causes of heel pain

Dr. Cunha cautions against wearing summer slide shoes that are "completely flat, as they will contribute to [longer] pronation and collapse of the arch, which may [lead] to plantar and posterior heel pain, shin splints, knee pain and back pain."

So, he recommends summer slide shoes that have "an arched footbed" or a wedge "3/4 of an inch," to help support the arch of the foot and minimize discomfort.

Dr. Cunha recommends the following flip-flops for people who just can't let go

If you still want to wear your beloved flip-flops, but don't want it to be one of the causes of heel pain, Dr. Cunha recommends the Vionic Bella II Sandals, which have a footbed that "absorbs shock and reduces stress on feet, ankles and knees." (All of Vionic's shoes are made to promote arch support.)

"These flip-flops," he says, "are the only ones to have the approved seal of acceptance by [the] American Podiatric Medical Association."

If these aren't your style, Dr. Cunha recommends the Birkenstock Gizeh EVA Flip Flops or Nike Ultra Comfort Thongs.

You don't have to give up your flip-flops entirely. But you do have to be smart about what you put on your feet. They take you far; treat them well.

What they're saying about the newest Knick Kevin Knox

After a handful of Summer League games, the Kevin Knox bandwagon is filling up.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

So this is what hope around the New York Knicks feels like. Even if it's just the exhibition Summer League slate ahead of what is sure to be a sixth-consecutive losing season.

But rookie small forward Kevin Knox, drafted ninth overall out of Kentucky, has stolen the show in Las Vegas as he's given Knicks fans a glimpse of just how high his ceiling could be.

Spoiler alert: We're still ascending with no ceiling in sight.

Through three games — a limited sample size that will always force even the most optimistic viewers to pump the brakes — Knox was ranked third in the Summer League with an average of 23.3 points per game, including a 29-point effort against the Los Angeles Lakers.

While he has regularly shown his athleticism and explosiveness near the rim with big air and emphatic dunks, Knox showed against LeBron James' new team that he can, in fact, shoot from deep. In what was his biggest knock during the pre-draft process, Knox hit 5-of-7 three-pointers against the Lakers.

Per NBC's Tommy Breer, Knox is the third rookie in the last 10 years to average over 22 points per game over his first three appearances. The other two were John Wall and Damian Lillard.

That's some pretty nice company to be in.

Don't forget that his college coach, Kentucky's John Calipari, compared Knox to Boston Celtics first-year phenom Jayson Tatum, who helped his team make the Eastern Conference Finals this season.

Naturally, this has the Knox bandwagon nice and crowded three months before he'll even see a regular-season game.

I can't stress enough how important it is to take things with a grain of salt, but here is what some big names around the industry are saying about him:

"Watched Kevin Knox light it up again today, this time in person. Two things stuck out: he is incredibly smooth and his feel for the game is highly advanced (3rd-youngest player in class). Talk around arena among NBA folks was clear: Knox is freaky... Knicks got an absolute stud."

-Jordan Schultz
Yahoo! Sports Insider

"Congrats to Knicks fans on Kevin Knox — I try hard not to overreact to Summer League, but it's clear he's an ideal two-way wing for whatever the NBA is now. Very polished for his age already."

-Bill Simmons
HBO, The Ringer

"Initial impression of Knicks rookie Kevin Knox: WHOA!!! This kid is athletic and smooth."

-Tim MacMahon

"Yo!! Kevin Knox is nice."

-Enes Kanter
Knicks starting center

"Kevin Knox is basically Giannis [Antetokounmpo] with shades of Paul George and LeBron [James], but with a tinge of Anthony Davis also."

-Dan Favale
Bleacher Report

"Kevin Knox has looked terrific in the Summer League. Not bad for an 18-year-old who was drafted because of his long-term potential. The fact that he's doing this NOW is pretty amazing. It's going to be a lot of fun watching him develop."

-Alex Kennedy
HoopsHype

"You're going to think this is a ridiculous question, but if NBA could re-draft after less than a month, would Kevin Knox go higher than No. 9? I say definitely. He's 18."

Formula E season concludes at NYC ePrix

It's down to Jean-Eric Vergne and Sam Bird for the 2017-18 Formula E title as a champion will be crowned in New York this weekend.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The 2018 Formula E championship comes down to one final week of races at the NYC ePrix. Luckily for dramatic purposes, it's going down in the biggest city in the world: The Big Apple.

Just 23 points separate Team Techeetah's Jean-Eric Vergne (163 points) and DS Virgin Racing's Sam Bird (140 points) heading into the weekend festivities in Red Hook.

With the Statue of Liberty and World Trade Center providing a stunning backdrop, the intimate 14-turn track will call for the very best from the field before a champion is crowned.

Vergne's chances of taking home the title at the NYC ePrix look very good, however, there is some doubt surrounding his ability to clinch things. He could have put the championship to bed during the last round in Zurich, Switzerland in June, but he was only able to muster a single point. Bird, on the other hand, managed to accrue 18 to make the two-race slate in New York a very interesting one.

Bird's dominance in New York should also be a concern for Vergne. During Formula E's debut in New York City last year, Bird won both races as he finished fourth in the driver standings.

"I love this track. What an amazing backdrop we've got here in Red Hook overlooking Manhattan," Bird said. "What a great place to be and I'm so pleased

Formula E returns to Red Hook for a second-straight year as the 2018 NYC ePrix kicks off on Saturday. GETTY IMAGES Formula E has been able to secure one of the biggest cities in the world for such an event."

The 2018 NYC ePrix goes from Saturday, Jul. 14 (3:30 p.m. ET) to Sunday, Jul. 15 (3 p.m. ET). Two races will be run with points awarded to each participant depending on their finish. Obviously, the better the finish, the more points are rewarded.

A win earns a driver 25 points while a 10th-place finish yields only one.

While there are two chances for Bird to overtake Vergne in the standings, he is putting all his focus on Day 1.

"Saturday is key," Bird said. "I need to beat JEV on Saturday in order to make it to Sunday. That's just the way it is. If I don't, my life will be very difficult on Sunday."

It's not out of the realm of possibilities for Bird to come from behind and win it all. Last season saw Lucas di Grassi overtake Sebastian Buemi on the final day of the 2016-17 campaign to take the title.

Bird and Vergne are very familiar with each other, which also adds a little bit more to the championship's final races. During the 2015-16 season, just the second of Formula E's existence, Vergne raced alongside Bird for DS Virgin Racing.

However, there seemed to be some problems with the team owned by Sir Richard Branson.

"We had a bit of a difficult time as teammates but we put that to bed. JEV is a world-class driver who can compete with anybody on the global stage on his day," Bird said. "He comes from Formula 1 and honestly he could still be in F1, he's that good... I have the utmost respect for him."
